Despite being known as a minefield of career-obsessed, commitment-fearing singles, New York is, in fact, a town for lovers. Whether you're happily cuffed or still looking for that special someone, there's something universally magical about sidling up to a candlelit bar for a drink with someone you fancy. Just in time for Valentine's Day, here's our guide to the most romantic bars in New York City.

Maison Premiere

Pair fresh oysters—they're an aphrodisiac, after all—with absinthe and pastis cocktails at this lauded New Orleans-inspired bar helmed by barman Will Elliott. The food and drink are superb and the French-accented decor—something like a Parisian hotel café plopped down in NOLA's French Quarter—will transport your Valentine's date to another world.
