

Looking for a date spot in Williamsburg is like trying to find a blazer at Brooks Brothers that'll make you seem boring. Which is to say: there are options. On this guide, you'll find the best Williamsburg bars and restaurants for all kinds of date-night situations. So whether you're going out with a hiking enthusiast from a dating app or a person who lives in your apartment, shares your bed, and sometimes picks the morning gunk out of your eyes, you'll find the ideal spot right here. We've divided this guide into bars and restaurants, to help you find that place a bit faster.

Maison Premiere

Brooklyn / Williamsburg
298 Bedford Ave.

Maison Premiere is another one of our go-to bars in the neighborhood, and, like Hotel Delmano, it feels older than it actually is. This classic cocktail place is a little larger than Delmano, and there's a seafood-heavy dinner menu with an extensive list of oysters. Typically, you don't leave here without eating some of those, but you can also just sit at the u-shaped bar and order a cocktail from a bartender in suspenders. Expect a wait if you're trying to hit this place at a peak time.

Sauvage

Greenpoint
905 Lorimer Street

Let's say it's 6pm on Friday, and it just occurred to you that you're grabbing dinner with someone in two hours (and you have to pick the place). Just go to Sauvage. It looks like it could be in Paris, the food is great, and it's never too hard to find a table here. You can also just sit at the bar and have snack, if you don't want to commit to a full meal.
